Under the terms established by law, and except for cases legally provided for, shares confer on their owners at least the following rights:

The General Meeting may also delegate to the administrative body the power to determine the date on which the resolution for a capital increase, once adopted, must be implemented, and to define the conditions on any matters not provided for by the General Meeting.

Article 17.- Withdrawal of pre-emptive rights

The General Meeting or, where necessary the Board of Directors which agrees on the capital increase, may agree the total or partial withdrawal of pre-emptive rights on the grounds of corporate interest.

In particular, the corporate interest may justify the withdrawal of pre-emptive rights when necessary to facilitate (i) the acquisition by the Company of assets (including shares or holdings in companies) used to carry out the corporate purpose; (ii) the placement of new shares on capital markets to allow access to sources of finance; (iii) fund gathering through the use of placement techniques based on prospection of demand to maximise the issue price of the shares; (iv) the incorporation of an industrial or technological partner; (v) the implementation of employee remuneration schemes through the delivery of the Company's shares or options on

Article 22.- Corporate bodies

The powers that have not been assigned to the General Meeting by law or by the Bylaws correspond to the administrative body.

The regulation by law and the Bylaws of these bodies will be implemented and supplemented by the Regulation of the General Meeting and the Regulation of the Board of Directors, respectively. Any amendments in the form of updates must be approved by a majority at a meeting of each of the aforementioned bodies, constituted under law.

SECTION I.- GENERAL SHAREHOLDERS' MEETING Article 23.- General Shareholders' Meeting

The General Shareholders' Meeting, duly called and constituted, represents all the shareholders, all of whom will be subject to its decisions with respect to issues within its powers, including for the non-assenting and non-attending shareholders, without prejudice to the right to dissent established by law.

The General Shareholders' Meeting is governed by law, the Bylaws and the Regulation of the General Shareholders' Meeting, which completes and develops the regulations in the law and Bylaws on matters relating how it is called, preparation, procedure and operation, as well as the exercise of the shareholders' rights of information, attendance, representation and voting. The Regulation of the General Meeting must be approved by the latter, at the request of the administrative body.

Article 24.- Classes of General Meetings

The General Shareholders' Meetings may be ordinary or extraordinary.

The Ordinary General Shareholders' Meeting must meet within the first six months of each fiscal year to approve, if appropriate, the corporate management and financial statements for the previous year, and to decide on the appropriation of earnings, without prejudice to its power to deal with and decide on any other issue that appears on the agenda. The Ordinary General Shareholders' Meeting will be valid even if it has been called or is held outside the period stipulated above.

Any General Meeting that is not included in the above category will be considered an Extraordinary General Shareholders' Meeting. It will meet whenever called by the Company's Board of Directors at its own initiative or acting on a request from shareholders holding at least three per cent of the share capital. Their request must specify the issues to be dealt with at the General Meeting.

Article 25.- Calling the General Meetings

The General Meetings will be called by the Board of Directors through a public notice published in (i) the Official Gazette of the Commercial Registry or in one of the dailies with the biggest circulation in Spain; (ii) the Company's website; and (iii) the website of the Comisión Nacional del Mercado de Valores (National Securities Market Commission - CNMV), at least one month before the date set for holding the General Meeting.

The Ordinary General Meeting may agree by express resolution, with the majorities required by law, to reduce the advance notice for calling the Extraordinary General Meetings to a minimum of fifteen days, provided that shareholders are offered the effective possibility of exercising their vote remotely. This resolution shall not be valid beyond the date on which the next General Meeting is held.

The notice calling the meeting must include a number of legally established items, including whether the meeting is ordinary or extraordinary, the Company's name, the date, time and place it is to be held, as well as the agenda, which must be drafted clearly and precisely, including all the items that will be deliberated, the way in which the General Meeting will be held, establishing whether it will be in person or remotely, whether remote attendance will be permitted, or whether it will be exclusively remote, pursuant to article 25 bis below, and other matters that may be included under the provisions of the Regulation of the General Meeting. The notice may also include the date on which the meeting will be held at the second quorum call, if appropriate. There must be a period of at least twenty-four hours between the first and second call.

In addition to the above, the notice calling the General Meeting must include not only the items generally required by law, but the date by which the shareholders must have registered the shares in their name in order to be eligible to participate and vote at the General Meeting, the location and form in which the full text of the documents and proposed resolutions may be obtained, and the address of the Company's website where the information is available. The notice must also include clear and precise information on the procedures to be followed by the shareholders who wish to participate and vote at the General Meeting.

Shareholders representing at least three per cent of share capital can request the publication of a supplement to the notice calling an Ordinary General Shareholders' Meeting, including one or more items on the agenda, provided that the new items include a justification or, where applicable, a justified proposed resolution. This right must be exercised by due notification at the Company's registered address within five days of the publication of this notice.

The supplementary notice must be published at least fifteen days prior to the scheduled date for holding the General Meeting. Failure to publish the supplementary notice within the legally applicable deadline shall constitute grounds for challenging the General Meeting.

Likewise, shareholders representing at least three per cent of share capital can, within the same five days of the publication of the notice, submit justified proposed resolutions on matters already included or which must be included on the Agenda of the General Meeting. The Company must ensure these proposed resolutions and any attached documentation are made known to the rest of the shareholders.

If the duly called General Meeting is not held at the first call, and the date of the second call is not included in the notice, the second call must be announced, with the same agenda and the same publicity requirements as the first, within the fifteen days following the date of the General Meeting not held and at least ten days before the date of the meeting.

The administrative body must also call the General Meeting when requested by one or more shareholders who own at least three per cent of the share capital. This request must include the matters to be dealt with by the General Meeting. In this case, the General Meeting must be called for within two months of the date following the date on which the administrative body has been requested to call it by notarial document. The administrative body must also include on the agenda any matter or matters which may have been included in the request.

Any court call of General Meetings will follow the provisions of the law.

Article 25 bis.- Exclusively remote General Meeting

The Board of Directors may decide, under the conditions provided by applicable law, to hold the General Meeting by exclusively remote means, without the attendance in person of the shareholders or their proxies.

Holding the General Meeting by exclusively remote means will in all cases depend on duly guaranteeing the identity and legitimacy of the shareholders and their proxies, and on all those attending being able to participate effectively at the meeting through the remote means of communication permitted at any time by applicable law, whether to exercise in real time the corresponding rights to contribution, information, proposals and voting, or to follow the contributions of the other persons attending by the means indicated above, taking into account the state of the technology and Company's circumstances, in particular the number of its shareholders.

Article 26.- Place and time of the meeting

The General Meeting will be held at the place indicated in the notice calling the meeting within the municipality in which the Company has its registered office. A General Meeting which is held by exclusively remote means shall be understood to be held at the registered office.

The General Meeting may agree its own postponement for one or more days at the proposal of its directors or a number of shareholders who attend the meeting and represent at least a quarter of the share capital. Whatever the number of its sessions, the General Meeting shall be considered as a single session, and one set of minutes shall be taken for all the sessions. The General Meeting may also be suspended temporarily in the cases and manner specified in its Regulation.

Article 27.- Constitution

The Ordinary or Extraordinary General Shareholders' Meeting will be deemed quorate at the first quorum call when the shareholders present or represented hold at least twenty-five per cent of the subscribed share capital with voting rights; and at the second quorum call, it will be deemed quorate whatever the share capital present.

However, for the Ordinary or Extraordinary General Shareholders' Meeting to be able to agree validly on a capital increase or decrease and any other amendment of the Bylaws, the issue of debentures within the scope of its powers, the withdrawal or limitation of pre-emptive rights to new shares, and the transformation, merger, spin-off or global assignment of assets and liabilities and move of the registered office abroad, will require at the first call the attendance of at least fifty per cent of the subscribed capital with voting rights present or represented. At the second call, twenty-five per cent of the capital will be sufficient.

The shareholders with a right to attend who cast their vote remotely under in the terms indicated in article 32 below will be considered present for the purpose of the quorum of the General Meeting in question.

Any absences occurring once the General Meeting has been constituted will not affect its validity.

Article 28.- Universal Meeting

The General Meeting shall be understood to be called and duly quorate to hear and resolve any matter, provided that all the share capital is present and those attending unanimously accept it should be held.

Article 29.- Right of attendance

The shareholders can attend the General Meeting whatever the number of shares they own, provided that they have been duly legitimised before the General Meeting is held. Their legitimacy will be certified by a corresponding personal attendance card that certifies them as shareholders by law, indicating the number, class and series of the shares they own, as well as the number of votes they can cast. The legitimisation of the shareholders may also be certified by any other equivalent means provided for accreditation and participation by remote means, under the Regulation of the General Meeting, the notice calling the meeting and the procedural rules approved, where appropriate, by the Board of Directors within the scope of its powers.

To be entitled to attend the General Meeting the shareholders must have their ownership of the shares registered in the corresponding book entry in the accounts five days before the date on which the General Meeting is held, and be provided with the corresponding attendance card or document that accredits them as shareholders under the law. Attendance by remote means must at all times guarantee the identity and legitimacy of the shareholders.

The members of the Board of Directors must attend the General Meetings, in person or remotely, although if any of them does not attend for any reason this will not in any case prevent the General Meeting from being validly quorate.

The Chairperson of the General Meeting may authorise the attendance in person or remotely of the Company's executives, managers, experts or any other persons who have an interest in the good running of corporate matters, and to invite any persons he or she considers appropriate.

Article 30.- Attendance by proxies at the General Meetings

Notwithstanding the ability of shareholders who are legal persons to attend through the person who has the power to represent them, any shareholder with the right to attend may be represented at the General Meeting in the terms established by the Board of Directors, by any person, whether or not a shareholder in the Company. This proxy must be granted in writing or by means of remote communication, as determined by the administrative body that duly guarantees the identity of the person represented and the proxy; and in particular for each General Meeting, in the terms and within the scope established by law and the Regulation of the General Meeting.

The Chairperson of the General Meeting or the persons designated by him are understood to be empowered to determine the validity of the proxies granted, and compliance with the attendance requirements of the General Meeting; and to admit or reject the validity of the attendance card, proxy and remote vote or document certifying attendance or representation, and of the equivalent means provided for certification and participation by remote means.

The provisions of the preceding paragraphs will not be applicable if the proxy is the spouse, ancestor or descendant of the principal; or when the proxy has a general power of attorney granted in a public deed with the power to administer all the principal's assets in Spain.

The proxy may always be revoked, and attendance by the represented party at the General Meeting shall be deemed to revoke the proxy.

Article 31.- Right to information

From the date of publication of the notice calling the General Meeting and until the fifth day before the General Meeting is held, both inclusive, the shareholders may request the Board of Directors for any information or clarifications they deem fit regarding the matters included in the Agenda, or ask any questions in writing that they consider appropriate.

Moreover, with the same notice in advance in writing, orally or by remote means, as appropriate and in the terms established by the Board of Directors, shareholders may during the General Meeting request the Board of Directors for any clarifications they consider appropriate about the information accessible to the public that the Company has provided to the CNMV since the previous General Shareholders' Meeting, or about the audit report.

The Board of Directors will be obliged to provide the information requested in writing until the day the General Meeting is held. If any verbal requests are made during the General Meeting itself, the information must be provided at that time. If the shareholder's right cannot be complied with at the time, the directors must provide the information requested in writing within seven days following the conclusion of the General Meeting. The directors will not be obliged to provide the information in the following cases:

- (i) If the information requested is not necessary for the protection of shareholders' rights, it there are objective reasons to believe that it may be used for purposes not related to the Company, or if its publication may harm the Company or its affiliates;
- (ii) If the information or clarification requested does not refer to the matters included on the agenda, to the information accessible to the public which was submitted by the Company to the CNMV since the last General Meeting, or to the audit report;
- (iii) If before the question is asked, the information requested is clearly, expressly and directly available to all the shareholders on the Company's website in Q&A format; in which case the directors may limit their answer by referring to the information provided in this format;
- (iv) if it is the result of legal or regulatory provisions or judicial decisions. Nevertheless, the exception indicated in point (i) above will not be applicable if the request is supported by shareholders who represent at least twenty-five per cent of the capital.

Article 32.- Remote voting

The shareholders with the right to attend may cast their vote on the proposals regarding the items on the agenda of any class of General Meeting remotely under the following terms:

- (i) By post: by sending their attendance and voting card issued by the entity or entities responsible for the book-entry registration, signed and completed for this purpose.
- (ii) Remote means: the shareholders may cast their vote with a legally recognised electronic signature, or other type of guarantee considered appropriate by the Board of Directors, in accordance with the Regulation of the General Meeting, to ensure the authenticity and identification of the shareholder exercising the right to vote.

The vote cast by any of the means provided for in the above paragraphs will be valid only if it has been received by the Company before 23:59 hours on the day before the General Meeting; Otherwise, the vote will be deemed as not having been cast.

In the case of participation by electronic means, a voting system will be made available that allows votes to be cast before or during the General Meeting, in accordance with the provisions of the Regulation of the General Meeting, the notice calling the meeting and the rules approved for this purpose by the Board of Directors, as follows.

When the vote has been cast by electronic means, the Company must send the shareholder who cast the vote an electronic confirmation that the vote was received.

Within a month of the General Meeting being held, the shareholders or their proxies, together with the final beneficiary, may request confirmation that the votes corresponding to their shares have been registered and accounted for correctly by the Company, unless they already have this information. The Company must issue this confirmation to the shareholders or their proxies, or to the final beneficiary, within the maximum period established by law.

The Board of Directors, acting in accordance with the Regulation of the General Meeting, may implement the above provisions by establishing the rules, means and procedures appropriate to the technology used for casting the vote and granting representation by electronic means, in accordance with the laws issued for this purpose. The rules implementing the provisions of the above section will be published on the Company's website.

Attendance by a shareholder or his proxy at the General Meeting will revoke his vote cast by post or electronic means.

Article 33.- Chairperson of the General Meeting

The General Meeting will be chaired by the Chairperson of the Board of Directors, or failing that, by its Deputy Chairperson; and if there are a number of deputy chairpersons, in the order of preference established by the Board of Directors in their appointment; and if the Chairperson and Deputy Chairperson is unable to attend, by the member of the Board of Directors designated by the General Meeting itself.

The Chairperson will be assisted by a Secretary, a Deputy Secretary, or both. The Secretary of the Board of Directors will act as the Secretary of the General Meeting; or if he does not attend in person, the position will be assumed by the Deputy Secretary of the Board of Directors. Failing that, the shareholder or proxy elected by those attending the meeting will act as Secretary.

Article 34.- Deliberation and adoption of resolutions

The Chairperson shall submit the issues included on the agenda for deliberation and lead the discussions and speeches, whether in person or by remote means, to ensure the meeting proceeds in an orderly fashion. For this purpose, he will have the appropriate powers to ensure order and discipline, and may even remove those who disturb the normal course of the meeting, or decide to interrupt it temporarily. Even though he is present at the meeting, the Chairperson may delegate the direction of the debate to the Secretary or member of the Board of Directors considered appropriate.

The shareholders may request information under the terms of article 31 above.

Notwithstanding the provisions of article 25 bis above in the case of General Meetings held exclusively by remote means, any shareholder who attends the General Meeting in person may also intervene at least once in the deliberation of the items on the agenda, although the chairperson is empowered to authorise measures to ensure order, such as limiting the duration of contributions, drawing up rosters for contributions, or closing the list of contributions.

Once the matter has been sufficiently debated, the Chairperson shall submit it to the vote. The Chairperson is responsible for determining the system of voting he considers most appropriate and for directing the corresponding process, adapting where necessary to the rules of procedure included in the Regulation of the General Meeting.

Each share with a voting right present or represented by a proxy at the General Meeting shall have the right to one vote. The shareholders with a right to vote may cast their votes by post, electronically or any other means of remote communication that duly guarantees the identity of the shareholder who is exercising the right to vote, as determined by the administrative body at the notice calling each General Meeting, and in accordance with the Regulation of the General Meeting.

The exercise of the right to vote at the General Meeting by shareholders affected by a conflict of interest will be subject to the regulations of applicable law at any time.

The resolutions of the General Meeting shall be approved by a simple majority of the votes of the share capital present or represented. A resolution shall be considered adopted if there are more votes in favour than against of the share capital present or represented by proxy.

Excluded from this provision are cases in which the law or these Bylaws stipulate a larger majority; and, in particular, when the shareholders present account for less than fifty per cent of the subscribed capital with voting rights, the resolutions relating to the matters referred to in article 194 of the Corporate Enterprises Act will require the vote in favour of two thirds of the share capital present or represented at the General Meeting. However, if the share capital present or represented accounts for more than fifty per cent, the resolution may be adopted by absolute majority.

Article 35.- Minutes of the General Meeting

The minutes of the General Meeting may be approved by the General Meeting itself after it is held, and signed by the Chairperson and Secretary; or they may be approved within fifteen days by the Chairperson and two administrators, one representing the majority and the other the minority. The minutes approved in either of the above ways shall have executive force on the date of their approval. The minutes will be transcribed into the Company's Minutes Book or kept in any form permitted by law.

The minutes shall be certified by the Secretary or Deputy Secretary of the Board of Directors with the approval of the Chairperson or Deputy Chairperson, where appropriate, and the resolutions will be formalised in a notarial document by the persons permitted to do so under law, as determined by these Bylaws and the Regulation of the Commercial Registry.

The administrative body may require the presence of a notary to take the minutes of the General Meeting; and a notary's presence will always be required if shareholders representing at least one per cent of the share capital request it with five days' notice of the General Meeting. In both cases, the notarised minutes shall be considered minutes of the General Meeting.

If the General Meeting is held exclusively by remote means under article 25 bis, the minutes of the meeting must be taken by a notary, who may attend remotely, using a means of remote communication in real time that guarantee adequate compliance with notarial functions.

SECTION II.- THE ADMINISTRATIVE BODY Article 36.- Board of Directors

The Company shall be managed by a Board of Directors, which will shall composed exclusively of natural persons, notwithstanding the stipulations of the Twelfth Additional Provision of the Corporate Enterprises Act.

The Board of Directors shall be governed by the legal rules applicable and by these Bylaws. The Board of Directors shall develop and complete these provisions by means of the appropriate Regulation of the Board of Directors; and it shall notify the General Meeting of the approval of these provisions.

Article 37.- Composition of the Board of Directors

The Board of Directors will be made up of not fewer than five and not more than fifteen members, to be determined by the General Meeting.

The General Shareholders' Meeting is responsible for determining the number of directors. For this purpose, it will determine the number directly by means of an express resolution, or indirectly by the provision of vacancies or the appointment of new directors, up to the maximum limit established in the above paragraph.

The General Meeting must aim to ensure that as far as possible the proprietary and independent directors represent a majority on the Board of Directors and that the number of executive directors is the minimum necessary. Nevertheless, the reality of the shareholder structure of the Company shall be taken into consideration at all times, in particular the percentage of direct or indirect participation by executive directors in the Company's share capital.

For the purpose of the provisions of these Bylaws, the terms proprietary external director, independent external director and executive director shall have the meaning attributed to them by law.

If any external director may not be considered proprietary or independent, the Company must explain this fact and their links with either the Company or its executives, or with the shareholders.

The category of each director must be explained by the Board of Directors to the General Shareholders' Meeting, which must make or ratify the appointment.

If the Chairperson of the Board of Directors has the status of executive director, the Board, with the abstention of the executive directors, must appoint a coordinating director from among the independent directors. The coordinating director will have the special powers to request a meeting of the Board of Directors to be called, or the inclusion of new items on the agenda of a Board meeting already called, coordinate and gather the non-executive directors and if necessary, direct the periodic assessment of the Chairperson of the Board.

The Board of Directors must ensure that all director selection procedures promote gender diversity, as well as diverse experience and knowledge, with no implicit biases that may imply any discrimination; and in particular that they facilitate the selection of female directors.

Article 38.- Term of office

Directors shall serve in their posts for four years, at the end of which time they may be reelected for one or more periods of four years each.

The appointment of directors shall expire once their term in office has concluded and the next General Meeting has been held; or if the legal deadline for holding the General Meeting that must determine the approval of the previous year's accounts has expired.

If a vacancy opens once the General Meeting is called and before it is held, the Board of Directors may appoint a director by co-option until the next General Meeting is held.

Notwithstanding the above, the directors appointed by co-option shall continue in office until the first General Meeting held after their appointment date.

Article 39.- Appointments to the Board of Directors

The Board of Directors shall appoint a Chairperson from among its members, and one or more Deputy Chairpersons who, in accordance with the order of preference established by the Board, will replace the Chairperson in case of a vacancy, or when the Chairperson is absent or ill. It shall also appoint the person to hold the office of Secretary. To be appointed Chairperson or Deputy Chairperson the person appointed must be a member of the Board of Directors, which will not be necessary for the person who is appointed to hold the office of Secretary, although in this case the latter will have a voice but no vote.

In addition, the directors must keep secret all the confidential information, even after completing their duties.

Article 45.- Directors' remuneration

The position of director is remunerated. This remuneration shall consist of an annual fixed amount in cash that will be received by the members of the Board of Directors as members. The maximum annual amount for the whole Board shall be determined by the General Shareholders' Meeting.

Any amendment or replacement of this policy during this term will require the prior approval of the General Shareholders' Meeting, in accordance with the procedure established for its approval.

Notwithstanding the above:

- a) if the proposed new remuneration policy is rejected by the General Shareholders' Meeting, the Company will continue to pay its directors under the remuneration policy in force on the date the General Meeting was held. - b) if the annual report on directors' remuneration is rejected in the consultative vote of the Ordinary General Shareholders' Meeting, the Company may only continue to apply the remuneration policy in force on the date the General Meeting was held until the next Ordinary General Shareholders' Meeting.

The remuneration policy must comply with legal requirements, and must be accessible on the Company's website at no charge from the date of its approval and at least while it is applicable, together with its date of acceptance and the result of the vote.

Within the framework of this article of the Bylaws, the remuneration policy must establish at least the maximum amount of the annual remuneration payable to the directors as a whole as such and the criteria for its distribution according to the functions and duties attributed to each director, their place on the Board committees and other objective circumstances that the Board of Directors may consider relevant.

The remuneration policy must include at least the maximum amount of annual remuneration payable to the directors as a whole as such, and the directors' remuneration paid for the discharge of their executive duties, which must include the amount of annual fixed remuneration corresponding to the directors for their discharge of their executive duties and other legal provisions.

The Company may apply temporary exceptions to the remuneration policy, provided that this policy stipulates the procedure to use and the conditions in which these exceptions may be used; and specifies the components of the policy that may be the object of exceptions. The exceptional circumstances mentioned in this paragraph will only cover situations in which the exception to the remuneration policy is necessary to serve the long-term interests and sustainability of the Company as a whole or to ensure its viability.
